IS C.U.C.N.D. VALID?

GREEN AND GOLD

Once again the Green and Gold auditions are just around the corner.

No previous experience is required in order to try out, so do not be frightened to come along even though you may not have had anything to do with the stage before.

You may ask what the people in the picture are doing? Well, they are being instructed in one of the dances that took place in last year's production. They too were puzzled, as you will be. However, this soon wears off and everyone settles down to have a most enjoyable time.

In next week's edition of the Fault-He, the dates and times of the auditions will be published. So keep a close watch for the Green and Gold article next week and come along to help make this year's production the best yet.

Peter J. PEGG,
Director.

ASSEMBLY OFFERS FILM

Monday morning's assembly for Institute of Education students offers a film entitled "Four Teachers". Perhaps it should be more aptly titled "Four Teachers Minus One" for, due to lack of available time, it was found necessary to cut out one section of the film. The movie deals with three teachers in three different locations — Japan, Poland, and Canada and the methods that each of these teachers uses. We see each teacher at work in his classroom and also fulfilling his duties outside the class. Each segment dealing with a country is followed by a discussion of the methods that the teacher uses. As a matter of interest, the Canadian portion of the film was taken at Macdonald High School in a Grade Seven class. This National Film Board pro-

CAMERA CLUB

"How To Take Pictures of People" was the subject of the demonstration given at the Camera Club meeting on Tuesday. Well over twenty shutter-happy amateurs, guided by a few of the more experienced photographers turned their creative energy onto an abundant choice of subject material. Ian Jackson, former president of the McGill Camera Club, led the demonstration by setting up examples of lighting and posing. The success of the meeting was an excellent indication of the interest there is in photography on the campus. More demonstration meetings will be held throughout the year. People interested in the Club are welcome to join at any time.

Due to the controversy arising from last week's editorial on C.U.C.N.D., we have decided to enlarge upon the issue in a more appropriate manner. This will be in the form of letting the students themselves decide the issue.

We will have a student writing an article in support of C.U.C.N.D., its policies etc., and a second student giving an argument against C.U.C.N.D. This is in order to present to you the pros and cons of the issue which may support your own convictions, or otherwise. Each of these will be presented in the consecutive editions of the Fault-He commencing next week, and on the third week, we will conduct a poll. All students and professors on campus will be eligible to cast their votes, in order to determine how many support the C.U.C.N.D., and how many do not support the C.U.C.N.D.

The issue of nuclear disarmament is one of the most important issues of our times, indeed, within the last half-century, which can be proven by the files of any newspaper. It is of the utmost importance to the young people of our times, and it certainly has been impressed upon us to such a pressure, that it is with us every living minute of our lives. Decisions reached by the world's hierarchy will not only affect us, but future generations for years to come. It is because of its importance that we are conducting this poll, to see what degree of support the C.U.C.N.D. has, in reference to its policies. By co-ordinating the results of the poll, and the policies of the C.U.C.N.D., we can measure, to some degree, the influence of the C.U.C.N.D., on campus.

S.G.W.V. goes beat

The Georgian Players last week finalized their plans concerning this year's major production which is to be presented on November 30, December 1 and 2 in Birks Hall at Sir George Williams University.

This year's choice of play is "him", one of the two plays written by e.e. cummings, the American poet. This play is considered to be one of the first of what we now know as the avant garde plays although it was first published in 1927.

The play is concerned with the relationship between two people; Him the artist, and Me the woman. This relationship is constantly fraught by the inability of the two to communicate and this inability is compounded by the further inability of Him to reconcile himself as an artist with the other image of Him, the man capable of something more than a failure. Confusion results when the listener attaches a different meaning to a symbol than that implied by the speaker.

In the light of this problem Him and Me can never come to a satisfactory understanding as neither can Him with society.

The diversity of content and staging of these scenes makes "him" an exciting and stimulating theatrical piece which can and does move through moments of the dramatic, the satiric, the pathetic and the revue.

EDITORIALS COMMENTS

In order to have an efficiently run college, a great deal of organization is necessary, and it has come to my attention that Macdonald is lacking in this capacity. We are not suggesting that the members of the staff are lacking in organizational ability; but rather that, due perhaps to other important and pressing duties, some important aspects have been overlooked.

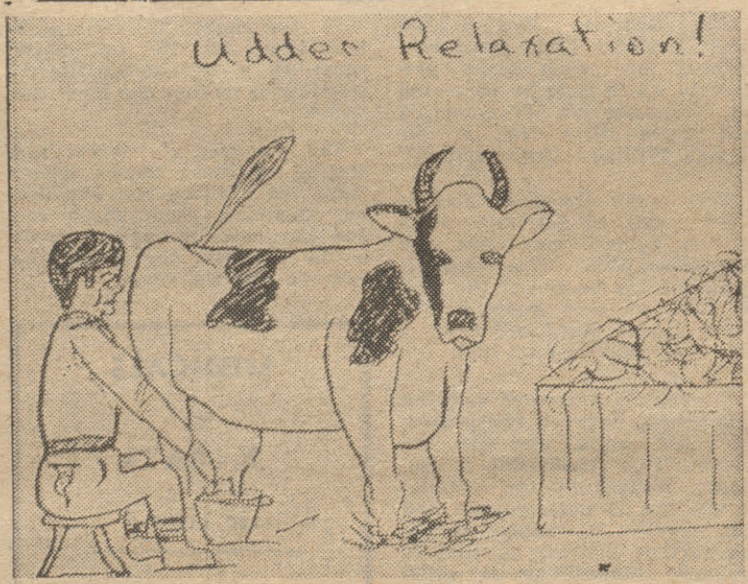

The first of these aspects arises in the rumored placing of exams after practice teaching for some of the groups in the Institute of Education. I'm sure that the instructors realize the impossibility of devoting all your energies to practice teaching and studying for a set of exams at the same time. One or the other must suffer as a result and it is usually the studying that comes out on the bottom of the heap. Would it not be possible to arrange exam schedules in order that the exams may be finished prior to practice teaching?

Why is it not possible this year to have staggered lunch hours as was the practice last year? As far as the commuters are concerned, it is next to impossible to get into the Coffee Shop because everyone goes to lunch at the same time. Perhaps a room could be made available to contain the overflow. The students who live in residence and eat their lunch in the dining hall must stand in line for what seems like an eternity. The new dining hall was intended to handle the overflow but everyone must enter through the same door and this causes the delay. Why couldn't the doors leading directly into the new dining hall be opened in order to handle this overflow? While on the same subject, it would seem only sensible to use the new dining hall at breakfast and supper as well for the same wait in line is involved at these meals also.

It would be advantageous for the students to know exactly what professors are in charge of the various aspects of administration. As the situation now stands, it wouldn't be impossible for a student to spend the better part of an hour searching for a certain professor to answer his questions on one single part of the administration. Perhaps a list of the professors and their duties could be posted in a prominent position. This would stop the students from going to the office and wasting everyone's time by asking what may appear to be relatively unimportant questions.

In many cases in Assembly Hall lectures, as much as ten minutes is wasted by the professor in arranging his sound system and getting the lights to work. Wouldn't it be possible for the professors concerned to arrive a bit early and put these matters into order? If it is impossible for him to arrive early, then perhaps a student could be delegated to do the job. In this manner the attention of the class is not lost, and a better lecture will probably result.

These are only a few of many points which I feel could have been prevented from cropping up by a little more foresight. Many of the problems arise from increased enrollment which must have been known before the start of the college year and thusly they could have been eliminated before they arose. It is still not too late to correct them, however, and I am sure that if enough students demand correction these problems will be eradicated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

It appears that the editor of this newspaper does not know or understand what is required of him in his editorial capacity. Leastwise, I hope that this is all that is wrong. In such a case, therefore, he needs to be enlightened.

The editor of this newspaper, in effect, usurped a certain authority not granted to him by way of mandate or any other form from the student body, student council, or faculty.

I would like to make it clear to him, that the Fault-De Times, as far as is generally believed, is not supposed to offer or for that matter encourage preferential treatment of issues that affect groups.

It is not meant also, that the editor should express his personal views on a subject to which the newspaper as such does not adhere.

This newspaper is not meant to be the organ of some political front, to be used as a propaganda vector. It is not meant that it should be used in such a "derogatory" sense, as it is the case with the larger city newspapers.

Let the politicians and their sponsors use their own newspaper.

C. d'Ornellas (Agr. '62)

Dear Sir:

The first two issues of your paper seemed to be nothing more than harmless exercises in mindless illiteracy. However the November 3rd. issue brings into sharp relief both the danger and the ludicrousness implicit in journalism, if I may so dignify your endeavours, which is devoid of perspective, thought and knowledge.

The hysterical, ideological chauvinism of your editor betrays a lack of awareness of the sentiments of a significant number of your fellow Canadians. What is particularly objectionable is the facile sloughing off of opposition to officialdom as Communist inspired or as avenues to Communist infiltration. Responsible or for that matter irresponsible, criticism of government policy and/or entrenched opinion is one of the peculiar strengths of our civilization. A failure to recognize this truism of democratic practice is intolerable in purportedly educated college students. However, this letter is merely to vent my spleen and not to indulge in political controversy.

When more space is devoted to a silly debate over seating in the dining hall than to any other topic, it seems to be about time an "agonizing reappraisal" of editorial policy was made. A college newspaper is not an overblown purveyor of gossip to a small in-group, present practice excepted. It is, or at least should attempt to be, a means of communication and a form of opinion. What Macdonald or any other college needs is a lively controversial journal, not an insipid, insular rag.

Norman Bernstein (2S)

Dear Sir,

I would like to thank Harold E. Lawrence and Bill Brandon for their prompt reply to my letter. Perhaps the Junior (Agr. '63), might have the courtesy to sign his true identity to a letter.

Bill Brandon; do YOU feel that you are qualified to judge what benefit Miss Cliff and I have brought to this campus? Surely this is a matter that only faculty can decide? I personally cannot see what bearing your sentence had in reply to the original letter.

Hugh S. Saben

Ed.—This the last letter regarding this subject that will be printed.

Council Corner

By Joanne BUSH

— Treasure Van may be held at the College Nov. 29th. and 30th.

— Two positions open for Students Council were both filled by acclamation. The treasurer is now Bill McConachie and the Councillor for the Post-Grads is Dick Rector.

— Report of losses by Green and Gold and Lit. and Deb. were $209.00 and $85.00 respectively.

— It was suggested that a new organization and administration of athletics at the college be revised so that it will be the same as the system at McGill, where athletics is recognized by the administration as a department.

— A new plan for posters was suggested by Ann Ilves. Brown paper will be put up with the days of the week and activities for that week underneath. Requests must be submitted by the Friday night before the activity.

— Students Christian Movement is to be started on campus. They are in need of a male Agriculture Student to help with organization. If you know of anybody suited for the job, please submit his name to John Gates.

— The War Memorial Assembly will be held on Saturday morning in the Assembly Hall. Classes at 10:30 will be cancelled.

Dear Sir:

Perhaps the time has come when the students at Macdonald begin to voice their opinion and further to see that their wishes are carried out. I'm referring to that fact that some time ago, soft drink machines were installed in the Coffee Shop on a trial basis. I have yet to hear anyone say anything in favor of them and yet they still remain.

Recently, cigarette machines were installed. I believe the reason behind this trend to automation is to decrease the work involved behind the counter and to increase service while maintaining quality. I find it hard to see how this is being done.

The soft drinks seem to me to be anything but as good as those previously sold in bottles. The quantity, I am led to believe, is the same; however it does not seem so. If there is an increase in service it definitely is not apparent to the customer especially when he must go to the cashier for change, which, in itself, very seldom seems to be available.

Suppose a customer has two quarters with which to buy cigarettes, he must get change from the cashier which involves time on the both parts, as well as two dimes and one nickel. If cigarettes were on sale behind the counter, the time element would be the same and the amount of change involved would be one dime.

The Coffee Shop is to my knowledge, owned by the students and is under their control; thus lets have something done about the aggravations—namely, REMOVE THEM.

Ian McFall

Dear Sir:

What was the new scoreboard put up for? In the game against Loyola we saw the bottom of a 2 to show the quarter we were in. This number remained in the slot till the end of the game. I know that the score against the Aggies rose fairly high, higher than we wished to see it, but we would have loved to see a score on the scoreboard just once this year.

The money spent on the scoreboard might better not have been spent at all for all the good it has done. By the time the winter storms are through with it whole structure will be a menace to anybody who would happen to be near it.

In closing I would like to suggest that the M.A.A. or some other group get busy right now and get some numbers made that will fit for next year. Let's not leave this job till next year, otherwise the job won't get done at all.

Yours truly,

H. T.

Dear Sir:

The mentality of some of the students in Britannia hall is lower than that of a one year old. It was a disgrace that some of the so called "boys" are around to destroy college property. If a few of the "boys" get a little sloshed it wouldn't be so bad, but when they come back and start bowling with the toilet paper down the halls and breaking the lights with hockey sticks as the janitors suspect. Don't these fools know that they will be paying for their damage, if they are not caught and fined they will have to pay for it next year in higher costs for room and board.

In closing I would like to say if those persons don't smarten up they will never be able to make a half decent mark. If I ever catch those people they will be sure to be reported, if they are lucky. I hope that this event not occur again and these FOOLS do something to remedy the damage, even if it is done anonymously.

Yours truly,

H.T.

Ed.—One letter last week and two this week were not published because the persons concerned neglected to sign their names. Students are reminded that the letter must contain a LEGIBLE signature otherwise it will not be published. If you wish to remain anonymous, state this fact beneath your signature and your wishes will be complied with. Please endeavour to have your letters typed to eliminate either any chance of typing mistakes on our part or errors in comprehension.

HERE AND THERE

By TONY BROSCOMB

One of my informants has told me about this little episode: in one of the lectures, a student was giving her viewpoint on authors, and said, "An author is not a human being," to which the lecturer replied, "Well... sometimes." Professor Hall is the author of Growth Through the Language Arts.

A new system of carrying sound waves has been devised at Macdonald College. This system neither amplifies nor decreases the sound. In short, you cannot tell the difference between the reproduction and the original production. (Sounds logical, what?) Although the authorities are not telling us any secrets, I have had the opportunity to survey this recent discovery.

The new system is still in the experimental stage, and testing is being conducted between Rooms M.022 and M.027. It consists of, believe it or not, an air duct, which also passes through Rooms M.024 and M.026. Whether the new system is audible in these two rooms, I cannot say, but in M.027, the sound is quite audible.

The duct is of galvanized steel, and there are no obstructions whatsoever to form muted tones, etc. Temperatures vary within the room which is receiving the reproduction. When the music is of natural, tonal quality, with plenty of gusto, off—notes, and a variety of keys, then the temperature is hot. Should the tonal quality be unnatural, having a "brassy" sound, perfect pitch, one key, correct notes, and unlimited orchestration (which the former doesn't have), as if recorded, then the temperature is invariably cool.

However, it's not the temperature that I want to grieve about, but the fact that this goes on when other classes are trying to learn something other than music; arithmetic for example. Can you concentrate on arithmetic when two dozen voices are raised in a composition just short of harmony in discord? How do you feel when you have the answer in mind, and the strains of "doh-ray-me-fah-soh-lah-tedoh," and down again, assail the ears, erasing the answer in a few seconds? Fun eh? No fun for me, nor for the lecturers, or others. Maybe if they put openings from the duct at each end of the room for a hi-fi effect, it would make it more bearable.

Here is a little gem. Posted on the bulletin board in the Stewart Foyer on Friday evening was a sign, evidently reminding the 1st year Phys. Ed. men that there was fairy dancing in Britain Gym at 1:30 p.m. Can you imagine some 6 feet 2 inches guy weighing 180 pounds, doing fairy dances? If that is part of the course, then it is absolutely ridiculous; for that course anyway.

Agricultural people may disregard this, unless their conscience is bothering them. You folks out there in the Institute of Education (with a few exceptions, and they have executive positions at that) are nothing but a bunch of YO-YO's. Why? Well you know what yo-yos are good for, other than for amusing children, don't you? Right, good for nothing. The executive ask you to do something, or just to suggest something, and you won't do either. What do we do with folks like you? Leave you to rot? (It's too inhumane). Make you do something? (Russian volunteers are no good either). Just let you plug along? Sure, why not? What happens is what happens to all good yo-yos' in time. The string breaks, and whereas it was of little use before, it is of no use at all now. Too bad, yo-yos' fascinate me.

Now, here's something for the Aggies (or Dips). Maybe when you fellas are returning a carcass or two to Laird Hall in cars or trucks, you could be a little more quiet huh? More often than not, a vehicle (usually the Turtle Pond job) rips past the huts with a whoop an' a holler, roaring motor, and a slamming of doors. The folks in the huts must have their rights respected, as much as you want your rights to be respected. One of their rights is a little peace and quiet with their families, away from the high-tension "drives" of the college and its occupants.

I don't know about the rest of you fellas in Britain, but don't you think it's rather moronic when you find the heat turned on during a mild spell? Whoever has the say about when it goes on, and when it goes off, must have a slow body reaction to temperatures. Right now (1:25 a.m., Saturday), it is warm out, it is warm within, and the ruddy radiator is as hot as a freshly poured cup of coffee. The thing is, the damn thing is TURNED OFF.

THE SPORTS SCENE

by DAVID BAXTER

Last Saturday the Aggies were beaten badly by the Loyola Warriors. There is little anyone can add to what has already been said and this agent will be a conformist. Loyola was bigger, faster, and more experienced than Macdonald, for that reason they won. The score was 49-7, but that game has gone into the record books and the last game of the season is at hand. This is a game that must be won, no matter what. It has been a matter of pride to beat Bishops and this season is no exception. Today the busses have already been ordered, but if you have not signed then try to get into a car that is making the trip. For once forget your commitments and go out and support a tradition that has lived at Macdonald for a long time.

Footnotes :

Pentti Luomala sustained a head injury in the game and he is a doubtful starter in tomorrow's tilt. Coach Bob Pugh said that there would be some changes in the line-up. When interviewed he said that Bobby Davidson would operate out of a half-back spot while Bill Mitchell will get to run out of the full back slot.

Basketballers Training Hard :

With the basketball season approaching rapidly, the players are hard at work. Coach Ralph Whims has them practicing four times a week. Attendance at the sessions has been good, averaging from fifteen to twenty players per practice. "We have the potential for a much better and stronger team than last year," says Whims, "but we must remember that we are in a much stronger league this year; one of 'A' caliber." The first game is to be played here on Saturday, November 18 at 2:00 p.m. Keep this date in mind and come out and see for yourself the most promising Aggie team in years.

Hockey Starts

As of today there have been quite a few hockey practices and the team looks as if they are rounding into shape. Until coach Bob Pugh is free from football, last year's major M winner Leon Abbot will be taking the practices. On Wednesday the team was cut to two dozen players and there are still six or so more to be put on the Junior Varsity team. Before the season starts, there will be some exhibition games, the dates of which will appear in next week's edition.

Weeks round-up

The soccer season ended with a loss to McGill but the loss was of the encouraging nature. The team played their best game of the season and held the strong opposition to only one goal. There will be a complete summary in next week's paper. From what I hear the football boys are looking forward to the end of the season, then they can start to get into some kind of shape. Now before trainer Dave Marsh throttles me, I had better clear out.

Medical and X-ray Examinations

Some students have not kept their appointments at the Infirmary for their medical and X-ray examinations. Their attention is drawn to the following regulations of the McGill Senate:

1. First year students and new students to the University: In his, or her, first year, as a member of any Faculty, every student must present himself, or herself, for general clinical examination and routine laboratory tests. Examinations are given by appointment with the Health Service. Students who fail to comply with this requirement by December 1st in any academic year will be subject to a fine of $25.00 and students who fail to comply with it by December 15 will be suspended from membership of the University. Every student who has been in continuous attendance must be medically re-examined by the Health Service in his Sixth year at the University. Every student who has spent one or more academic years away from the University must be medically re-examined during the year in which he re-registers.

2. Other students: In each academic year during their membership of the University, other students must present themselves, at a date to be announced, for a chest X-ray examination. Examinations are given by appointment with the Health Service. Students who fail to comply with this requirement by a date to be announced, in any academic year, will be subject to a fine of $25.00 and students who fail to comply with it by a final date will be suspended from membership of the University.

SPOTLIGHTING Women's Sports

Interclass Basketball

The interclass basketball schedule started yesterday. Here are some important rules to remember. If the game is defaulted then the team will lose five points, so check the schedule to find out when your game is to be played. Winning teams will be awarded five points; in the case of a tie each side will receive three points and a loss is worth one point. As you can see it is better to get out and lose with a smile than be docked five points.

Intercollegiate Volleyball

The final team for Intercollegiate volleyball has not been picked as yet, but there are practices every Monday at 4:30 P.M. and Wednesday at 7:30 P.M. Mrs Godfrey is coaching this year, and so far the turnouts have been very good. If as many turn out for volleyball as did for basketball, the team should be one to be reckoned with.

On The Side

Students who are interested in skating can pick up their rink cards from their WAA representative; the skating times are posted of the Athletic Board. There will be an interclass swimming meet in the near future. Contact your WAA representative in order to sign up.

Arrangements have been made for some of the delinquents to make an additional appointment for these examinations on November 23rd. Students who have not met the requirements by this date may have to have the examination at McGill. In any case, either new students or others who have not had the required examination before December 1 will be assessed the $25.00 fine and, if they are still in default by December 15, they will be suspended from the University.

Accordingly, delinquent students are instructed to make arrangements with the Infirmary immediately with regard to another appointment for the examination they have missed.
